SEDALIA, MISSOURI, THURSDAY EVENING JUNE 20, 1907—

VOL. 1. NO. 145. PRICE FIVE CENTS

FEDERATION OF LABOR

AN IMPORTANT MEETING WAS HELD AT HEADQUARTERS LAST EVENING.

SOON TO ARRANGE FOR LABOR DAY

The Celebration to Be Held the First Monday in September Will Be the Grandest in History of the City.

Labor day! The day of all days for the working class, the day when united labor marches in solid phalanx in commemoration of things achieved and to gather new inspiration for the future. Labor day! The mile post in labor's advancement and final emancipation. Each succeeding year adds greater significance and importance to labor's holiday and what it portends.

Labor day and its proper recognition by the hosts of organized labor in Sedalia was the chief subject of discussion at the semi-monthly meeting of the Sedalia Federation of Labor held last night.

From the interest already manifested it is quite evident that all former demonstrations will be surpassed, both as to program and the number participating. There has been a marked increase in membership of nearly all the locals, and a number of new locals have been formed the past year.

The provisional committee which was appointed at a previous meeting of the Federation to outline a general program for the forthcoming labor day celebration recommended, among other things, that the celebration be held at Liberty park provided satisfactory arrangements can be made for its use; that a program be arranged to cover the entire day, and that the usual parade be held in the forenoon, starting not later than 9:30 o'clock.

The committee also recommended that no intoxicants be sold on the grounds, and that funds for defraying the expenses of the celebration be raised by contributions from the local unions participating.

The report of the committee was concurred in and its recommendations referred to the general labor day committee, with instructions to arrange a program in accordance therewith.

The general labor day committee, which will have full charge of the arrangements, is composed as follows: M. J. Donohue, boiler-makers; J. D. Meyer, musicians; Cyrus Knox, brewery workers; Thos. Pardee, painters; W. J. Musick, blacksmiths 54; Theodore Schwartz, sheet metal workers; Henry Murphy, bartenders; A. C. Lucking, retail clerks; H. H. Templeton, machinists; H. C. Finch, carpenter; Wm. Frazier, barbers; Ida Jolly, laundry workers; W. B. Morgan, blacksmiths 266; Otto Burk, cigarmakers; C. M. Yankee, printers; F. H. Kruse, tailors; Mrs. H. E. Muir, ladies' auxiliary machinists.

A meeting of the general labor day committee has been set for Monday, June 24, at 8 p. m., to be held in the office of the secretary of the Federation in the Hurley building, 110 East Third street, at which time the committee will organize and select sub-committees from among its members. Locals not yet represented on the committee are urged to select their representative without delay.

E. T. Behrens, secretary of the Federation, was selected to compile this year's labor day souvenir.

DEATH OF MRS. YOUNG

Woman Dies on Eve of Her Eightieth Birthday.

Higginsville, Mo., June 20.—Mrs. Edward Young, wife of a farmer, residing ten miles south of this city, was found dead in her bed at midnight Tuesday. Heart trouble was the cause. Preparations had been made to celebrate her eightieth birthday anniversary yesterday.

She was the mother of Marcus Young, president of the Citizens' bank of Warrensburg, and the late Grove Young, who left an estate in this city valued at $200,000.

Made Many Friends While Here.

Hon. R. Steele Ryors, judge of the Thirty-second judicial circuit, who resides at Linn, Osage county, Mo., has been holding court for Judge Hoffman during the present week.

Judge Ryors is a gentleman of fine mental and social qualities, and an excellent judge. He made many friends while here. Judge Ryors left for home today.

They Take to the Street.

The sidewalk on the west side of Broadway school, on Montean avenue, needs the attention of a street commissioner, who could please his many friends residing in that part of the city by putting a man to work shoveling off wagon loads of dirt that has accumulated on the walk and necessitates passersby walking in the street.

WILL NOT BE A STRIKE

COMMISSIONER OF LABOR NEILL BRINGS PEACE BETWEEN COMPANY AND MEN.

WESTERN UNION MADE STATEMENT

Claim by President of the Company That This Is Satisfactory and That All Danger of Trouble Is Now Over.

New York, June 20.—As the result of a visit of Commissioner of Labor Neill and following the suggestions made by him an adjustment of the differences between the Western Union Telegraph Co. and its operators has been reached and there will be no strike.

This morning President Clowry, of the Western Union, addressed a letter to the commissioner, outlining the position of his company. The statement is apparently satisfactory to all concerned.

TAFT ARRIVES IN OTTAWA

Secretary Left Kansas City This Morning—Health All Right

Kansas City, Mo., June 20.—After a splendid night's rest here, Secretary Taft left this morning for Ottawa, Kas. On his way to the railway station he visited the office of a physician and underwent a slight treatment for his throat. The physician stated that the treatment was very ordinary and that his distinguished patient was in perfect health in every other way.

Arrived in Ottawa.

Ottawa, Kas., June 20.—Secretary Taft arrived here from Kansas City this morning and will address the Chautauqua this afternoon on "The Panama Canal." He would not say in advance whether or not he would touch on politics or reply to the remarks addressed to him here yesterday by W. J. Bryan in his speech. Great crowds of visitors are in the city.

A $30,000 DAMAGE SUIT

Holden Editors File Counter Suits for Libel.

Warrensburg, Mo., June 20.—Dew brothers, of Holden, formerly editors of the Holden Progress, have filed a suit in the circuit court against R. H. Tatlow, editor and owner of the Holden Enterprise, for $30,000 damages, because of an alleged libelous publication.

Some months ago Tatlow filed suit against the Dew brothers for $10,000 damages for publishing a cartoon of him.

Two Changes by Barkeepers.

Rube Colbert has resigned his position at the Stag saloon to accept employment at the Windsor bar, while Ferd Johnson, of the Antlers bar, also has resigned to accept similar employment at the Windsor bar.

Sedalia Gun Club Shoot.

The first shoot for the gold medal by members of the Sedalia Gun club will be held at Liberty park at 4 p. m. tomorrow.

A BIG GRIST IN COURTS

NEGROES HUNTED ON GROUNDS WITHOUT PERMISSION OF THE OWNER.

JOHN JONES IS PAINFULLY CUT

Will Be Tried as Soon as His Injuries Permit—Warrants Are Issued for Several on Other Charges.

Isaac Rudy, Macon Palmer and Travers, negroes, were arrested last night by the constabulary, charged with hunting on the grounds of Dr. F. L. Sutton's home, north of town, without permission of the owner.

Rudy was fined $1 and costs by Judge Rickman, and made arrangements to pay, while Judge Clark imposed a similar fine on Travers and gave him time to pay.

Palmer employed the services of Attorney H. G. Phillips and will be tried in Judge Rickman's court on June 24.

Joe Armstrong, a negro peace disturber, was sent to jail for ten days by Judge Rickman, while William Gunn, another peace disturber, was given the same sentence by the same judge.

John Jones, also a negro, was arrested by the constabulary last night on the charge of fighting on East Main street. He was quite painfully cut in the affray and will be tried as soon as his injuries permit.

Judge Rickman issued a warrant today for the arrest of B. C. Bradshaw and Arthur Thornberry, charging petit larceny. The complaining witness is Samuel Stevens, a farmer of near town.

Yesterday the two defendants went to Stevens' home to purchase some junk. When they had gone, Mr. Stevens says he discovered that a number of wrenches and other articles were missing.

Two other warrants were issued today, one for the arrest of a negro for killing a canine and carrying the carcass to a neighbor's home, while Judge Rickman issued another warrant charging petit larceny.

CRIMINAL COURT ENTRIES

Those That Were Made in Judge Hoffman's Court Thursday.

In the Pettis county criminal court Thursday, Frank Williams, arrested for feloniously assaulting James Eakins, was sent to jail for ten days, after pleading guilty to common assault.

Howard Dixon, charged with the same offense, had his case continued, at his own request.

Henry Ford, fined $10 and costs for selling liquor on Sunday, filed a motion for a new trial, but the motion was overruled and a stay of execution was granted for sixty days.

"Babe" Bell was given five days in jail for assaulting James Eakins after he pleaded guilty to common assault.

Why Not Cut the Weeds?

Residents of West Broadway are complaining of the high weeds on the vacant lot adjoining Mrs. J. A. Ware's residence, at the corner of Broadway and Kentucky avenue, which space of weeds extends as far as Montean avenue.

DEBS' ARTICLE EVIDENCE

JUDGE IN HAYWOOD TRIAL ADMITS ARTICLES APPEARING IN MINERS' MAGAZINE.

THE MURDERED MAN IS ABUSED

Idaho Officials Called "Whelps Who Should Go Back to Their Native Hell"—Warned Governor of a Future Settlement.

Boies, Idaho, June 20.—With the opening of court in the Haywood trial this morning the state continued the introduction of evidence supporting the story told by Orchard off the stand.

Judge Wood announced that the court was thoroughly satisfied as to the admissibility of the articles appearing in the Miners' Magazine, showing the animus of the Western Federation of Miners during the period of the commission of the series of crimes confessed by Orchard and alleged by him to have been incited by the officials of the Federation. The articles appearing after that period, the court said, would not be admitted as evidence.

Senator Borah read a letter from Eugene Debs, published in the magazine February 1, in which Debs denounced Governor Steunenberg and the other officials of Idaho in the severest terms as "whelps who should go back to their native hell, and who shall not escape the consequences of their crimes."

Debs compared these "vile official creatures," as he called them, with Paul Corcoran, whom Debs called an honest working man standing magnificent in the strength of his righteousness.

In conclusion Debs wrote, "Know ye, Steunenberg and others, that we have an account to settle with you."

B. & O. TRAIN WRECKED

Cars Were Damaged, But No One Seriously Hurt.

Louisville, Ky., June 20.—The Baltimore and Ohio Southwestern passenger train, which left St. Louis last night, was cut in two by a falling rock in the tunnel near Mitchell, Ind., this morning and the mail car, combination car and two day coaches were wrecked. The Pullman escaped. Several persons were injured, but there was no loss of life. The injured were taken to Seymour, Ind.

THREE GREAT PLAYERS

WHO FORMERLY BELONGED TO SEDALIA WESTERN ASSOCIATION CLUB.

DAVIS, BUNTON AND WILL WHITE

The Two Former Are Playing With Topeka This Year, While the Last Named Artist Is With Oklahoma City.

The Topeka Western association ball team Tuesday defeated the Oklahoma City team by a score of 2 to 1, and the Topeka Journal of Wednesday had the following paragraphs regarding former Sedalia players:

It may sound strange to some of the fans, but it is true nevertheless that Johnnie Bunton, of the Topeka club, has so far this season made the best record of any pitcher in the Western association without an exception. Yesterday he annexed his seventh straight game.

"Red Davis, of the locals, met with the misfortune in yesterday's game of getting spiked in the left hand. In the very first inning after getting a single he attempted to steal second. In tagging him as he slid Wisser accidentally spiked him in the hand. His hand is in bad shape, but he will probably continue to play. He played a plucky game in the field yesterday after his hand was hurt.

The prettiest bunt without a doubt that was ever laid down in Topeka was the one Billy White, of the Oklahoma City team, pulled off in the seventh inning of yesterday's game. The ball went down the third base line with just enough speed to keep it from going too near to Runkel and enough reverse English to keep it just inside the third base foul line by a fraction of an inch.

In the third inning of the game yesterday with two runners on bases and Davis batting there were just eighteen foul flies knocked. It was a very critical time for Buchanan and he was trying to induce Davis to fail. Ball after ball which cut the corner of the plate was fouled. Finally in sheer desperation Buchanan gave him a walk.

MR. DOW SAYS HE HAS PAID

Was Printed That He Was Delinquent $50 to Shops Fund.

John Dow, formerly of 1526 East Fifth street, this city, now living one mile east of town, called at the Democrat-Sentinel office today and complained that his name had been printed among those delinquent to the Missouri Pacific shops fund.

Mr. Dow said he subscribed $100 and paid it, but the bank people with whom he did business say they have a record showing of two payments of $25 each, but no more, which would leave a delinquency of $50.

Mrs. C. E. Miller, wife of the well-known traveling man, living at 509 West Fourth street, phoned the Democrat-Sentinel this morning that it is not her husband who is delinquent $75 on a $100 subscription to the Missouri Pacific shops fund, and she requested that the public be notified of the fact.

Investigation revealed that the delinquency was that of the late "C. E. Mellor" instead of "C. E. Miller."

THREW BOMB AT LEGISLATORS

Members of Grecian Chamber of Deputies Have Narrow Escape.

Athens, Greece, June 20.—An unknown man threw a dynamite bomb from the gallery of the chamber of deputies during the all night session last night.

The cartridge fell among the members, but a disaster was averted by the fuse becoming detached. The thrower was arrested.

Supt. Finney Invited.

Supt. N. J. Finney, of the Katy, today received an invitation to attend the graduation exercises of Capt. Henry E. Eames, his brother-in-law, who is a member of the graduating class of the army college staff of the United States army at Fort Leavenworth, Kas., which exercises are to take place on June 29.

Former Sedalians Doing Well.

John T. West, mayor of Pueblo, Colo., was in the city last night, and left this morning for his home in the Centennial state. Mr. West has been at New Franklin, Mo., relative to investing in Missouri lands and will return some time soon to consummate the deal.

Talking about people known here, Mr. West referred to David Ramsey, a former Sedalian, who is now engaged in the undertaking business at Pueblo and is doing nicely. Clay Keene, also a former Sedalian, is engaged in the furniture business at Pueblo, and he, too, is doing well.

No Hope of Recovery.

Leavenworth, Kas., June 20.—The condition of former Senator Lucien Baker at noon today was unchanged, but the physician says there is no hope of recovery.

PLAYERS WILL QUALIFY

FOR THE GOLF TOURNAMENT IN HOPE OF WINNING THE C. H. BARD CUP.

MUST SIGN CARD AND DEPOSIT IT

Will Reynolds' Team, Recently Defeated by Harry Finke's Team, Issues a Challenge and It Is Accepted.

All golfers who play eighteen holes Saturday to Monday next should deposit their card properly signed by both players in the box at the Country club house.

The lowest medal score made on those days will qualify the player making the score for the open championship contest, which will be played September 21 to October 5 by the sixteen who qualify.

Each Saturday to Monday, from now on, will be used to qualify one player, until the sixteen have qualified. Five having already qualified, there yet remain eleven to qualify.

This tournament is for the C. H. Bard cup, and is the principal tournament of the season. The winner will be the club champion for the year.

The Reynolds team, which was defeated by the Finke team in the two-ball contest last Saturday, says that it cannot be done again, and have issued a challenge for another game. The challenge has been accepted, and the contest will be arranged for some day in the near future.

SENT BARRINGTON POISON

Note From an Unknown Person Said It Would Cure Indigestion.

St. Louis, June 20.—Poison in the guise of medicine, sent through the mails to "Lord" F. Seymour Barrington, condemned to die July 25 for the murder of James P. McCann, was intercepted yesterday by Sheriff Heipel of St. Louis county.

The poison, strychnine, was contained in a 5-grain capsule. Dr. Egger, county physician, said that he had found enough strychnine in the capsule to kill several men. The note accompanying it read:

"Dear Lord Barrington: I have been informed that you are suffering from indigestion. The inclosed capsule will cure you without fail." The letter was signed "Dr. C. M. Winney, 210 Lucas avenue." No one by that name is known at the address.

Paroled On $300 Bond.

In the Pettis county circuit court today, Allen Watts, who at this term of court was sentenced to three years in the state penitentiary for shooting at Charles Whitley, another negro, withdrew his plea of not guilty and pleaded guilty and was sentenced to two years in the state prison. He was paroled on furnishing a $300 bond.

Departed for Their New Home.

A. F. Whipple, who sold out his fuel business yesterday to the Sedalia Light, Ice and Fuel Co., of which Mr. E. R. Andler is manager, and family, left this afternoon for Denver, Colo., their future home.

OUR ICONOCLASTIC PRESIDENT.

One important Memorial day address has been somewhat overlooked.
In which Lieutenant Governor Sherman, of Illinois, pointedly attacked
some of President Roosevelt's policies, and especially his attempt to dictate to congress and overthrow the constitution and home rule. "The lawlessness of the age," said Governor Sherman, "is the gradual weakening of the legislative branch of the government. We need not denounce the cause. We deplore the fact. The cause may be the personality of its members. It may be the insidious attacks of the executive from time to time. The legislature originally was the strongest and the most representative. It is so no longer.

"The state governments are powerful agencies to train the citizens to an appreciation and understanding of civic duties, either in state or general government. The state can not be reduced to a mere outlying federal province, dependent upon the general government for its general local welfare."

Such advice from a republican official shows that there is a deep undercurrent swirling to the surface for the democratic policy of the freedom of the representatives of the people from executive dictation, and the recuscitation of the reserved rights of the states and home rule.

This republican protest against the
"insidious attacks of the executive,"
and "the usurpation of those in power, drunk with the lust of official might," as Governor Sherman says it, is a much more caustic criticism of the acts of President Roosevelt than has come from any democrat.

Politically it is very important, as Governor Sherman is a close friend of Speaker Cannon, and would hardly have made this attack without his counsel or consent. The old school Lincoln republicans are evidently combined to prevent the dictation of their present strenuous but erratic chief.

Democrats have long viewed with alarm the iconoclastic policies that have been fostered by the Roosevelt faction of the republican party; that in the name of reform is attempting to tear down the constitutional edifice reared by the fathers of the republic without even laying a solid foundation for the centralization they plan in its place.

While President Roosevelt is given full credit for his adoption of some democratic policies, it is feared that the effect of his Hamiltonian false doctrines will bring disaster.

The fact is that President Roosevelt is an opportunist, ready to grasp at any bubble that rises to the surface of the political pond that he thinks will aid Roosevelt renown.

THE STEEL STEAL.

Every railroad in the country has
for more than ten years paid an exorbitant price for its rails, and this in order that the Coreys, Carnegies, Schwabs and Fricks might startle the world with their vulgar display of wealth. The railroads in turn have passed this added burden on to the people who pay the freight.

Every piece of structural steel in use in the country has cost more than was necessary, and that extra and unreasonable cost will run against the owner so long as the structure stands. The same conditions exist in a long list of other over-protected commodities, and, if the party in power takes heed of the recommendations of the Manufacturers' association, it will not only remove the existing evil, but will forestall the actions of the hungry graters who are endeavoring to pass the most important part of a woman's subsidy bill, which is only another form of the protection graft.

GETTING AN "EDUCATION IN PRICES."

To know what "things should cost"
—what is a fair price for anything that is needed in a home—is not the ments in her home newspaper. She education. She does not get it at school. She usually begins married life by being a victim of sharp tradesmen. Then she begins to read, and study, and remember the advertisements in her home newspaper. She begins to buy at the stores that advertise, and thus be able to plan her purchases at home.

As her education progresses she develops the "bargain instinct," which is merely the ability to judge values, and to know when price concessions
are real and when they are fiction.
She comes to know high prices, and seek them; and to know low prices, and seek them; and to know high qualities, and seek them; and to know low qualities and to shun them.

She becomes "educated about the prices." And the merchant, for his part, knows that he will not attract her by his advertising unless he has something actually desirable to offer her. So the educated shopper, the advancer, performs a service for all women, in that she demands and secures a high grade of service from our merchants, and forces those who would succeed to divide their profits rather liberally with their customers.

It is reported that a citizen in Washington has been "tapping" the government's wireless messages. If the president's opinion of Foraker were to be put on the wireless, the wire-tapper's plant would probably be burned out.

"Vice President Fairbanks is a lover of amateur theatricals," says an Indiana contemporary. If that be so, he must take positive delight in presiding over some sessions of the United States senate.

The fact that Foraker once as governor appointed Taft to a judgeship in Cincinnati does not exercise the slightest mollifying influence on the situation in Ohio.

A Chicago woman says she is going to try to stop smoking on the streets and in all public places. It might help her some if men would refuse to give her a light.

The New York Herald claims that there are 198,000 young widows in that city. This suggests a revival of an old play, "The Perils of New York."

Abe Reuf says his conscience
"hurt" him. It was doubtless quite a shock to his nervous system to discover that he had a conscience.

The bureau of corporations gravely
and solemnly avers that the Standard Oil company "defies the law." This confirms our dark suspicions.

If that hobo feast at Chicago has not given the Newport people an idea, they are certainly not awake to their opportunities.

Newbro's Herpicide Destroys the Candruff Germ and Prevents Baldness.

Quinine and rum and a whole lot of other things are pleasant to rub on the scalp after washing it free of dandruff, but not one preparation of the general run cures dandruff and falling hair. It is necessary to kill that germ, to be permanently cured of dandruff, and to stop falling hair.
Newbro's Herpicide will positively destroy that germ, so that there can be no more dandruff, and so that the hair will grow luxuriantly. Destroy the cause, and you will remove the effect. Sold by leading druggists.

Close of Convention

The most successful state convention of Christian churches ever held in Missouri concluded its labors and adjourned sine die last night, to meet in Kansas City a year hence.

Yesterday afternoon devotional exercises were led by J. M. Bailey of Monroe City.

Reports of committees and business consumed a few minutes.

Marion Stevenson, who was formerly state superintendent of Bible schools of Illinois, conducted a conference on teacher training.

C. A. Lowe, of Kansas City; L. P.
Kopp, of Kansas City; Mrs. F. Meri-weather, Sedalia; J. H. Hardin, of Kansas City; S. G. Clay, of Kansas City, and Barely Meadow, of Kansas City, all took part in this conference.
It was helpful in suggestions, in how to conduct a training class for teachers.

Mrs. R. B. Preussner, of Topeka, Kans., delivered a most excellent address on "Boys and Their Homes."

This lady is very talented. At the close of the convention, when all were mentally surfeited, she held the closest attention of every listener. If this address could be printed and distributed in every home of our state it would be a great boon to the boys and mothers of Missouri. It was highly instructive and entertaining.

At the close of the session a telegram from Des Moines, Ia., was received, saying that Iowa's state convention was in session and sends greeting to the great brotherhood of Missouri. Read Eph. 2:18-20.

A like telegram from Sedalia was sent to Des Moines yesterday.

The following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, That this convention
does hereby express its most grateful thanks for the gracious hospitality
so characteristic of our Sedalia brothren, with which they greeted us on our arrival in the city and with which they have continued with unwearied patience and unflinching courtesy to entertain us while in their midst. Certainly no convention was ever more graciously received or more lovingly cared for than the state convention of 1907.

That we also are exceedingly grateful to our two ministers in this city, J. M. Rudy and W. F. Hamann, for their splendid preparation for the convention and excellent management. It will always be a sweet-scented flower in the garden of our memories.

That we truly appreciate the souvenir program and visitors' directory, prepared by Bro. Robbins. We hope he will be greatly repaid in advertisements for the Sedalia business college of which he is president.

That we express thanks for the generous advertisement to the press of Sedalia and for the space given to all proceedings.

That we gratefully remember all officers of the convention for their untiring labors in our behalf.

We are grateful to the railroads granting to the delegates the reduced rates. We especially thank the Missouri Pacific and M. K. & T., who

Our Coffee Business
Growing

We have been compelled on account of the constant growth of our coffee trade to install another mill—one of the Stimp-son's latest patterns. The new mill will grind coffee as coarse or as fine as you want it. No. 6 is the coarsest grind and the finest is the pulverized. If once we get the grind you like we will tell you the number, so when you order coffee you can always have the same grind.

lead in this, and our brother, Mr. Mc-Clain, the courteous agent of the Missouri Pacific, for his favors.

We express our hearts' gratitude to the other religious bodies and citizens of Sedalia for their open homes and wholesome hospitality enjoyed by our delegates. The ladies of the Baptist and M. E. churches, who so kindly served meals for the convention, are kindly remembered for their labors.

To the ministers of Sedalia we owe a debt of gratitude for the invitations given to our visiting ministers to preach for them Sunday morning and evening.

We greatly enjoyed the music rendered by the musicians of Sedalia.
It added very much to the worship and interest of the convention.

That as we leave this convention
we do so with feelings of gratitude for the favors we have received from our new-made friends in Sedalia, but it is with a determination to make this year the greatest year in every line of our work. We shall hope and pray that the next convention in Kansas City in June, 1908, by the help of Him whom we serve, shall be the greatest in our history.

C. H. Winders led the night song service and A. W. Kokendorfer offered prayer. W. F. Hamann presented the speaker of the evening,
Miss Mason, of Texas.

She spoke on the Centennial Aims of the C. W. B. M. The women of Missouri have chosen Mexico as their objective work. They intend to establish a new mission point.

The fifty years of Protestantism in Mexico are filled with heroic deeds and sacrifice of the workers who have sought to help these slow, easy going people to break away from priestcraft and ignorance.

Mexico is a beautiful country, of rich plains, fertile valleys, high snow capped mountains filled with gold and silver. The tourists from Europe come here to spend their summers, for it is not so hot as we believe; all nights are cool. To Mexico go our tourists in winter, for it has a delightful climate. Her natural resources are great, her climate is salu-brious, her people slow, industrious, affable, eager to learn the simple story of the Cross of Christ. They are tired of ceremony and pomp, and earnestly searching for something better.

The 16th of September is their Independence day. On that day they celebrate somewhat after our manner of demonstrations on the Fourth of July. The chief event is the bull fight. This is patronized chiefly by Americans and the lower class of Mexicans. The better class of Mexicans never attend; it is too bloody and ferocious. Excursions are run from American cities to these gory, beastly exhibits of Spanish cruelty.

The Mexicans are not Spaniards, as we suppose; they are Mexicans, descendants of an ancient race, which had an historic civilization, composed of great cities, industries, art and commerce.

The great hindrance to her progress has been the mailed hand of greedy Spain, through which Rome has pilfered the people of Mexico.
They have constructed great cathedrals and temples by the funds extorted from the people.

But in time Benito Juarez, who became president, changed the laws of the government, and separated church and state. All religious festivals and processions have been stopped, no officer of any religious society may wear a uniform. No Jesuit priest dare enter Mexico.

Let us not conclude that all have religious liberty. Multitudes dare not read their Bibles in the presence of their friends. It takes many years to overcome the prejudice of 400 years of Romanism. Seven thousand families of nobles are the only rich people in Mexico; all others are poor.
Millions of Mexicans never have a full meal, do not experience the delightful sensation of being once well fed.

Oh, we Americans have no conception of poverty, even in our great cities the multitudes that live in filth and squalor are not so poverty stricken as the great hordes of Mexico.
We churches of Christ of Missouri must found another school, and it will cost $10,000. We must send the Bible to these eight millions that never have read. They are anxiously awaiting, eagerly looking for the day when Jesus, the Light of the World, shall shine in their hearts, casting out darkness, breaking the shackles of ignorance and sin.

Miss Mason was a missionary in Mexico and spoke from her experience. It was a treat, filled with instruction and touching incidents of an active missionary career.

Troubles of the stomach, heart or kidneys are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak stomach nerves—the inside nerves—mean stomach weakness, at ways. And the heart, and kidneys, as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves." Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion, use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write me today for sample and free book. TELLS OF "THE BATTLE OF LIFE"

Principal Speaker at Convention of Firemen and Enginemen at Hannibal Makes Telling Address.

E. C. Whitesitt, secretary and treasurer, delivered the principal address of the convention of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen at Hannibal, Monday evening. He spoke in part as follows:

"The Battle of Life."
"Worthy Officers of the State Convention here assembled; delegates, brothers and sisters, ladies and gentlemen:—

"The question that we have under the microscope for a few moments is one of marvelous magnitude, yet it is given less thought by the general public than is given to many of less importance. In dealing with the topic I shall only have time to consider a few of the most important points. Allow me to say that this attempt at speech-making is one of the greatest battles I have ever engaged in. This convention is organized for the purpose of helping the members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen of the great state of Missouri to more successfully fight the battles of life, as well as to promote our social, moral and intellectual individuality. But the question—'The Battle of Life'?

"We are all engaged in a battle struggle; from the cradle to the grave it is one persistent, earnest contest. We cannot evade the issues, nor can we shrink from the responsibilities. Vain is every attempt by legitimate means to close the contest, because of adversity, or from desire to do so; even a furlough is denied us to go and see friends in the heavenly country that we might learn from their experiences, and returning be more wisely endowed, or strongly fortified to withstand the world's enemies or life's conflicts. We must press right on and meet whatever of good or evil that may betide our pathways, stopping only when the final discharge comes, then render our individual reports at the world's headquarters for infinite inspection.

"The battle of life would be hard enough to fight with the usual vicissitudes, which everywhere and continually crowd around our pathway, or mass for determined combat, if there were no hydra-headed monster of intemperance known. But with this enemy confronting us on every side, and boldly defying our efforts, how momentous is the struggle, and how uncertain the result, even with our best endeavor, and what makes this enemy's power more potential is his finger, red with blood of countless millions, victims of his power, who strew the fields of conflict throughout the ages past; and the dying, who at the present time cover the earth with their mangled forms, while their wails fall upon the ear of two eternities. 'Tramp! tramp! tramp! the contestants are marching with their white and their black banners waving, and only the heaven's reserve corps united with those who bear aloft the white flag of purity, the black banner—

ed hosts would capture all and remand them to the burning environments of endless ruin. Alas, there would be little hope of victory for right over wrong. This being true, it is hardly to be wondered at that the brave sometimes become disheartened and find themselves devoid of inherent forces sufficiently potent to successfully combat the aggressive evil. They either retire to some hermitage of inactivity or surrender outright to the enemy, not infrequently ending the unequal contest prematurely. Alas! for the individual, however richly endowed, when left to individuality. 'United we stand, divided we fall.' The best soldier is the veriest weakling when left alone, a target for the aims and assault of multiplied forces. From personal experience some of us heartily sympathize with the person, young or old, who is left to sigh rather than sing.

'I'm alone in all the world.

There's none to care for me,
None who would miss my sad voiced tone.

If I should cease to be,
'Thus, what all the world needs most when fighting the battle of life, is sympathy; yet it seems sometimes as if this grand reinforcement had left our planet, or had become so dwarfed and scarce that the aggregate of sympathy in an entire state could be carried in the vest pocket without attracting notice. Sympathy is the great stimulus, the elixir of life. Ob-literate sympathy, and not one of us would want to continue our existence in this world. Without sympathy, none would have the proper energy to fight the battles of life, and all would go down to defeat in this great war of our present age, where all of our personal forces are brought into their full capacity to maintain a honorable livelihood and degree of respectability.

"Having found in the many claims for reform a fearful void in their effectiveness or in the instrumentalities for enforcement, we are led to advocate formation better than reformation. If, on administering the obligation in the lodge room, the candidate would abide by the lessons, taught in the ceremonies of initiation, what a grand work the lodges of this country would be doing, and how much better it would be for him than to be led into the vortex that is sweeping thousands to destruction.

"The struggle of the fireman, from his first day on a switch engine, until he is crowned an engineer, is indeed a hard one; requiring all his mental and physical powers, and the time never was, or never will be, when a drink of whisky would, or did him any good, unless in case of illness. The battle waged by the tallow pot on each and every trip, from terminal to terminal, is one in which he is not always the victor, oftentimes falling by the wayside, overcome by heat, or perhaps from sheer exhaustion, from long hours, loss of sleep and improper food; he must hoist the white flag and wire for the relief corps, and not infrequently he is reprimanded by the officials. True, some should be censured, but the cases of fraud practiced upon the company are rare indeed, compared to the cases that a fireman is compelled to go into battle when he is doing himself an injustice, or through his sense of honor remains on duty at the eminent risk of sacrificing health, for a class that would not even give him a pleasant look, to say nothing about a word of sympathy, or a dollar for a night's lodging when in adverse circumstances. We are engaged in what is known as the world's greatest occupation. Let us urge each member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen to practice temperance in all things, especially in strong drink, and by so doing we will place ourselves at the top of the various trades unions. Each of us is in a measure responsible for our ultimate success in life.

"In 1873 was organized what has become the grandest fraternal organization the world has ever known. When Joshua Leach organized the B. of L. E. at Port Jarvis, little did he realize what a grand and noble work he had started, laying the foundation for the guidance of over 60,000 men today. Today, we stand permanent among fraternal and labor organizations in the United States, Canada and Mexico. The battle of life has indeed been a hard one for the a target for the aims and assault of ber we met the enemy, and they are ours. Today, the firemen are greeted with the right hand of over 20,000 engineers, members of our grand order, and the day is not far distant when the number will be 40,000 instead of 20,000. Through the teachings of our noble order, men are beginning to realize that a new era is being ushered in; in a word, 'when each can feel the other's sigh, and with him bear a part.' In such an age we should not worship hope, but live in earnest, and out our principals in such a way as to touch humanity, with the thrill that vibrates the throne of God."

The address closed with an appeal to the young women present to avoid drink and intemperance of every kind.

S.S.S. PURIFIES THE BLOOD

There is no other part of our physical system upon which so much depends as upon the blood. The muscles, nerves, bones, sinews, skin, and other portions of the body are sustained, developed and enabled to perform their different duties, because they are supplied with nourishment and healthful properties through the circulation. In various ways the blood becomes contaminated and polluted. A sluggish, inactive condition of the system, and torpid state of the avenues of bodily waste, will leave the refuse and waste matter of the body to sour and form uric and other acids, which are absorbed into the blood and Rheumatism, or some itching, disfiguring skin disease is the result. Muddy, sallow complexions, eruptions, blotches, pimples, etc., all show that some humor has taken root in the circulation and rendered it sour and unfit for nourishing the body. There is scarcely any disease which cannot be traced to the blood. Often the disease-tainted blood of parents is handed down to children and their lives are a continual battle against disease in some form, usually of a scrofulous nature. Rheumatism, Catarrh, Skin Diseases, Sores and Ulcers, Contagious Blood Poison, etc., are all deep-seated blood troubles, and until this vital fluid is purified they cannot be cured. For all blood diseases S. S. S. is the best remedy ever put upon the market. This great medicine is made of roots, herbs and barks of recognized blood-purifying and building-up properties. It goes down into the circulation and removes all poisons, impurities and humors, supplies the blood with the healthful properties it needs and completely cures blood diseases of every kind. S. S. S. cures Rheumatism, Catarrh, Scrofula, Skin Diseases, Sores and Ulcers, Contagious Blood Poison, etc., because it purifies the blood. Book on the blood and medical advice free.

TRUE NATURE STORIES

CLEVER YARNS VERY WELL TOLD

A Writer On the New York Sun Who Has An Imagination That is Even More Elastic Than Col. Joseph Peltier's.

I have received not less than 40 letters denouncing me as a liar, 15 asserting that I exaggerate, 12 crediting me with more imagination than veracity and half a dozen questioning my memory since my first paper on "Animals I Have Made Wild," says a writer in the New York Sun. One man especially doubted my story of the "Hose-Eating Shrew." I am prepared to produce the evidence of Walla Pa Zezanne, my guide. I am giving his native name, but will furnish his college yell and address to any one who wish to interview him. This person also attacked my story of the "Musical Cockroach." I have only to say that in his own work he speaks of having stealthily crept upon a cockroach, behind the shelter of a tree, and brutally shot him. "It was with feeling of the keenest pleasure, as a sportsman," he writes, "that I saw my cockroach wallowing in his blood." This man has never gone into the heart of a cockroach except with a bullet.

Another man proposes to send me affidavits of his own tending to show that I have stretched the truth. My answer is that I have no time for affidavits; I am busy looking after the animals. And even if I had the time and inclination my position before the public is one which does not permit me to enter into controversy with persons. To resume my veracious account:

In 1886 I accompanied a party of naturalists down Chesapeake Bay in search of sea monsters. At Love Point, the mouth of Chester River, we disembarked and went over to Kent Narrows for a day's fishing, hearing that rock ran 27 pounds in that neighborhood, with eye witnesses. While there the man who keeps the fisherman's retreat gave me a young lobster, imported from deeper waters. I noticed at the time that the lobster was plainly not a crab, which is of the brachyurous crustaceans, with the infallible sign that his tail folds under his cephalothorax. I mention this as a proof that I could not have been mistaken in the species. Returning to Baltimore I brought my lobster with me; I used to carry him, when I had him fully tamed, attached to a golden chain hanging from a pin in my lapel. One evening I went to the Academy of music, wearing my lobster. There was a musical conglomeration with a large chorus. At the first chorus I saw that my lobster was growing uneasy, at the second he became almost frantic. During the intermission I missed him and went on a search. But he was not to be found. The second act opened. The chorus had just gone off when there was a scream from the stage.

The oryx is the general name of the family of African antelope. During the Boer war I happened to be advancing rapidly upon Pretoria. I remember the rapid advance particularly, because I was with the Boers and the English were right behind us. One day General Botha, out of gratitude for my services in refraining from going into details about his maneuvers, gave me an antelope of the oryx family. I did not know what to do with him, but took him back to Cape Town with me after the war was over. There I set up an office. My oryx was with me daily and was so tame that I hit upon the idea of utilizing him to carry my dispatches to the telegraph offices. He had two very long, straight, sharp horns, and I soon had him so trained that he would stand by my desk, while I filed page after page on his horns, and at the signal would trot out with the messages, take them to the wire and return with whatever happened to have been received for me. He made a very good messenger, because—in consequence of the small boys of Cape Town annoying him—he was always in a hurry.

In the south of France I met a number of wandering Americans like myself, in the summer of 1892. Time was hanging heavy on our hands and we were looking for recreation. One of the party suggested a game of baseball, but we had no ball, and the matter was forgotten. I only of all the crowd remembered. I made up my mind that we should have that game and set every one at work making bats. They laughed at me, knowing that the bats would be of no service without a ball, but I kept my own counsel. While the bats were being made I journeyed into the woods until it was my good fortune to capture a hedgehog, which I trained, as shall afterward appear. On a beautiful clear day I called my friends together and told them that now they might bring their bats—we would have our game. They brought the bats incredibly and I brought my hedgehog. They chose sides, and I stepped into the pitcher's box with my hedgehog. "Play ball!" I shouted. Instantly the hedgehog rolled himself up tightly, and I struck the whole side out before they recovered from their surprise. We used the hedgehog many times after that and always won, for surreptitiously I had taught him to make his own curves.

Accompanying the Peary expedition in search of the North Pole, a few days out of Spitzbergen, I was helping some men with block and tackle who were moving an ice floe out of the channel, when a baby seal crawled into our boat and came to me affectionately. I took him back to the ship as a mascot. The seal was an aquatic phocoid—a cross between a sweet potato and a fish—and one of the finest specimens I have ever owned. It happened that we had an orchestra aboard to while away the lonesome hours, and I played first mandolin. One day my mandolin was dropped by a lubber who ought to have been a piano mover and smashed to pieces. I was inconsolable and wept for hours at a time, my pet seal watching me sympathetically. One day as the orchestra was about to play without me he crept into my arms, stiffened his body to rigidity and winked at me. In an instant—knowing animals so well—I realized that he was trying to help me, in his fishy way. You may believe this or not, as you chose, but I strung up that seal, looping the strings around his tail and letting him hold the tuning ends in his teeth, and played as I never had played before.

"Slinky Bill's" Revenge

By Hugh Pendexter

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

Mr. William Bilks, alias "Slinky Bill," swarthy of countenance and repellent of face, paused at the corner and looked back after the slouching figure of a man in a red sweater. He knew it was "Hunch" Hagan, and yet it puzzled him that "Hunch" should be sober. He even forgot for the moment that he ought to be angry with his former pal, when he remembered the scene up in Monroe county, where "Hunch" turned state's evidence, and only escaped Auburn prison by sending his mates there for long terms. Mr. Bilks had always treasured the remembrance in his mind and had sworn that once free, and wise enough to keep away from the banks that are under the protection of the American Bankers' Protective association and policed by the Pinkertons, he would find time to locate "Hunch" and even up the score. But the spectacle of "Hunch" sober and evidently intent on business eliminated all thoughts of vengeance for the moment, and it was only as the sweater threatened to be lost in turning a corner that Mr. Bilks remembered and quickly dogged the soft-footed renegade until the chase ended in a tall tenement house.

"Livin' up here, eh?" growled Mr. Bilks, as he passed the building and noted the number. "It's a long time since I done that dip, but 'Hunch,' I has a long mem'ry ta'nk heavens! An' wo's goin' ter settle dat little account afore youse leave old New York. Now wot has that bloke under his hat? Sober? An' in de mornin'! He must have a fat lay, an' I reckon he'll stand fer a pipe."

A casual mingling in Steinheimer's saloon on the corner brought forth the information that "Hunch" had been hiding up in that vicinity for several days and incidentally eschewing the strong waters. This settled Slinky Bill's determination, and as he had no immediate job in sight he engaged a room in a nearby lodging house and allowed his beard to grow until he looked like a cross between an anarchist and a hedge fence. In this way he came to learn of all the exits and entrances of his quondam pal, and from several trips in his wake, to a certain section of the Long Island shore, he decided some game was on, whereby a summer home was scheduled to wake up and find the larger portion of its furnishings missing. One day "Hunch" drove out among the back alleys and kitchen approaches on a meat cart, after toasting the driver into an acute state of insensibility, and it needed no second sight to tell Mr. Bilks that the land was being spied out in the old approved style.

Once "Hunch's" hunting grounds had been located Slinky Bill was content to remain unseen but where he could observe his enemy's comings and goings, knowing instinctively the hour of the killing had not yet arrived. The long, spring-night vigils reminded Slinky of his youth and his trust in "Hunch"; of the time when he thought fit the correct thing to hunt in pairs and have abiding trust in his mate. The belief of those days had been destroyed by the one act of the erring one up in Monroe county, and now Slinky followed the moonlit trails alone, with no one to call on him for a share of the loot, with none to play him double. If the memories saddened the old cracksmen it in no way weakened his purpose to have an accounting with his false comrade. If anything, it intensified his desire, albeit, he had grace to regret that the honorable calling in which he was numbered a bright light should be disrupted by private hate. He appreciated that "Hunch" was playing an eminently legitimate game in warring upon organized society, yet those four years in Auburn prison could not be cried down for the good of the order.

So he watched, and one night he knew "Hunch" was to make his strike. No sooner had the traitor left his hiding place and made for Long Island than Slinky Bill was at his heels, winning his sobriquet anew by the silent manner in which he kept pace and dogged his quarry.

First "Hunch" entered a summer house, occupied by a few domestics, and after rambling over the structure at his leisure, reappeared, carrying something in a small canvas bag that occasionally gave forth a mellow clink. Then another house was entered and the same fruitful exit was observed by the lone watcher.

"Fer de love of—Say, beau, but youse certainly makin' a real clean up dis time," muttered Slinky Bill under his breath, forced to admire the workmanlike way in which "Hunch" was covering the circuit.

At last even "Hunch" grew weary of well doing and paused undecided whether to take in the big house with the gable roof, or to go home. After thinking it over under a shade tree for some minutes he evidently compromised with himself by stealing away to a less pretentious section of the town and halting back of a neat frame house.

"Why, say," gasped Slinky, "dis is jest cigarette an' beer money. He can't be down so low as ter tap dat humble joint."

But "Hunch" evidently possessed the broad philosophy that looks on all netted fish as good for something, for after a quick survey of the moonlit premises he sneaked to the kitchen window and was soon inside the house. Mr. Bilks felt a wave of righteous indignation sweep over him as he swung his gum shoes over the sill and carefully kept a few paces behind the commercialized burglar. There was more risk in a small home like this, he well knew, than in one of those big barn-like places he had already entered; but as far as any common motion was concerned the two crooks might have been moonbeams, or falling leaves, so easily did they move from room to room. Then "Hunch" deftly weighed the silverware in the dining room, and would have grunted in disgust if he had been an amateur, for the stuff was all plated. He had not need to turn on his lantern to ascertain this. But as he was preparing to softly retreat his small eyes caught a glimpse of a toy bank, the property of some youngster, and rather than leave entirely without compensation he gingerly turned a handful of pennies and silver into his great coat pocket.

"Fer de love of—Why, say, dat four-flush is breakin' de kiddy's bank," moaned Slinky Bill, overcome to find even an enemy in his profession playing so low and onery a game.

Then as the hunted one turned to drift as silently as a shadow to the window Mr. Bilks anticipated him, and as the robber of toys reached the ground he was met with a stunning blow from a chunk of lead, fastened to a strip of leather.

"If youse had been true blue ter de callin' youse would have got off wid jest a touch fer de stuff. But I can't stand ter see a man sneak 'ings on a baby," commented Mr. Bilks, standing over the prostrate form and listening he growled. "An' ter t'ink dat one of us would sink his manhood, as de mis-ston guy says, fer dat!"

Then he fumbled in his pockets and at last produced three shining silver dollars. "Mebbe de warden frisked it from some poor devil afore dealin' it out ter me, but so far as I see concerned it's dead honest an' I reckon de bank needs it more'n I does." And the broad discs went to join their humble brethren.

With this charitable errand done, Mr. Bilks noiselessly retraced his soft steps and emerged in the moonlight just as "Hunch" began to show signs of returning to reason. "Come along," he growled, catching the prostrate form by the collar and dragging him out to the road. "Come along, youse baby's burglar. It goes again de grain ter leave youse where de cops can pinch youse. But when youse wakes up an' misses dat bit of stuff from de big bug's house I hopes youse will swear off dis Chris'mas tree work an' reform. Gawd knows when a big live man sinks ter dis dat room fer a reform is come."

And as the moon watched Mr. Bilks wend his carefree way homeward toward the big city, laboriously carrying several bags of clinking stuff, the five-year-old in the home of the ribbon-counter clerk dreamed on of saving up pennies until he could buy a pony.

Sahara Telegraph Line.

The desert of Sahara will soon be traversed by a telegraph line. All the details of the scheme have been worked out, and it is a matter of only a few months before the project will be in operation. The work is being done by the French government, which purposes to connect all its possessions in northern Africa by wire.

The poles will be of metal and will be placed 100 meters apart, supporting the wire at a distance from the ground sufficient to permit of the passage of a man on camel back.

It will be necessary to maintain a guard along the line, and a regular inspection will be made every two weeks. In the meantime guards are to be held in readiness to go out on a tour of inspection in case any interruption to the service is reported. Supplies will be maintained along the line for these parties. When the line has been completed it will form a valuable link in the means of communication in the dark continent.

Silently Replaced Them, Piece by Piece.

to learn if any alarm had been given. All was as still within as the blackness of the garden wall, and after moving the bulky canvas bags from his old betrayer's pockets Mr. Bilks again entered the kitchen window and made for the dining room. There producing his lantern, he carefully counted the pennies and nickels, abstracted so short a time ago from the little bank, and silently replaced them piece by piece.

TOOK THE MINISTER'S WATCH.
Last Action of Pickpocket Typical of His Life.

Rt. Rev. Dr. Chadwick, Bishop of Derry and Raphoe, in a speech at the synod of the Irish Protestant church, referred to the story of a pickpocket having been found dead with the watch of the clergyman who had come to attend him in his hand. The clergyman in whose experience this strange incident occurred was the late Rev. W. H. White, chaplain of the Savoy and chaplain to the speaker of the British house of commons in the reign of Speaker Brand. Mr. White was aroused in the small hours of the morning from his sleep by a sick call when, early in his ministry, he was a curate in a Brighton parish. He was summoned to a bad quarter of the town and was led to the bedside of a man who was rapidly sinking, amid surroundings of destitution and squalor. The man passed away while Mr. White was offering prayer in his behalf, and Mr. White, on rising from his knees, discovered to his astonishment that his watch had been removed from his pocket and was held tightly in the grasp of the dead man.

"I did," replied the poet.
"And the stovepipe—have you taken it down?"
"I have."

INCREASING LENGTH OF LIFE.

What Medical Science Has Done for the Human Race.

Reviewing the progress of medicine during the nineteenth century, Dr. John S. Billings, United States army, has shown that deaths of women from childbirth decreased during that period from 10 to 20 in 1,000 to 5 in 1,000, and that from all causes the deaths in New York city fell from between 35 and 40 in 1,000 to less than 20 in 1,000. He recalls the fact that 100 years ago yellow fever was epidemic in New York and Philadelphia for two years. For 30 years the disease has been almost unknown throughout the whole country; also that in 1800 the majority of persons one met were pitted with smallpox—the survivors of a much greater number—while now there are physicians who have never seen a case of smallpox; and that in the Napoleonic and revolutionary wars more died from disease than from wounds, while now hospital gangrene is unknown. Statistics show that in Chicago during the last 35 years the average age at death has increased from 12 to 32 years.

No one disputes these facts or attributes them to any cause other than medical science—the measures employed partly in curing disease, but more especially in preventing its introduction or its spread when once introduced.

TOBACCO SECRETS.

What Makes the Chico One of the Mildest and Most Enjoyable Cigars on the Market.

How many people, even among the most confirmed smokers, know what constitutes the difference between a strong and a mild cigar? It is simple enough. The strong product is so made that it burns badly, while a mild cigar is one that burns well—like the Wadsworth Bros. Chicos.

"These cigars," said W. E. Bard, the local agent, "are made from a long Havana filler, carefully selected, with the best hand workmanship, and as they burn freely with a firm, perfect ash, the result is a mild, pleasant and enjoyable smoke."

Six months ago the Chico was not known in Sedalia, but today it is the most popular cigar in the city, and is the favorite, although it sells for but five cents. Smokers who have heretofore wanted only ten of fifteen cent goods should step into a drug or cigar store and get a few Chicos. We know you will say, as do other fastidious smokers, that it is the mildest and most enjoyable cigar in the market.

AN IRISH SEA SERPENT

THAT WIGGLED THE TAIL AND SIGNED A BIG LINER ON THE ATLANTIC.

ONLY FEW MILES OFF IRISH COAST

Wonder if This Was the Ship on Which Pat McGinley Sailed From New York City Only a Few Weeks Ago?

Some of the officers and crew, and even a lot of passengers who were on the Campana on her last voyage, are willing to refute the familiar statement that there are no snakes about Ireland, says the New York Times. The Cunarder, which has arrived at this port, reports gravely, and has it duly chalked down in her log, that when only a few miles off the Irish coast a monster sea serpent was sighted. Following this entry in the ship's log there is nothing which would serve to identify the monster, but there were eyewitnesses who swear—

It was late afternoon. The zest of homecoming was in the air and all was merry aboard ship. The flying spume carried clear of the binnacle lights on the port side, and a sailor sat in the crow's nest spinning rope yarn. The gigantic twin screws were churning up the channel, and pleasant vibratory chills chased up and down spines in the steerage.

Suddenly an old whaler of the sixth mate's watch seized a belaying pin from the short bulwarks and shouted:

"There she blows." "Where away?" came from the skipper.

"Five cable lengths over your port quarter and a right whale for 17,000 gallons or I'm—shiver my t'gallants, it's a genuine sea serpent!"

The mysterious creature of the deep rose out of the water only a few hundred feet from the vessel's side. Eight feet of the body stood erect, and it nodded its head in the most friendly manner. It was also noted that its nationality was Irish-American, as its colorings were green and red, white and blue.

Thus far the officers of the vessel agree as to the essential facts, but at this point they fall into a discussion that makes it hard to tell just what the shape and size of the creature was. The second engineer thought that it was about 40 feet long and had a head like a cat, while the sixth mate contended that it was really 90 feet long and had a shape like a python and a head much resembling a young monkey.

Capt. R. C. Warr was on the bridge when he got his glimpse of the sea serpent as it rose out of the water on his port bow. The eight front feet of the monster were stretched out and the catlike head turned inquisitively to one side while the serpent watched with deep interest the passing of the vessel. Thirty feet from the head a coil of body showed above the water, and perhaps twenty feet further ten feet of tail wiggled above the surface.

The appearance of the briny denizen created something akin to a sensation, and the officers gathered to watch the creature. Purser McCubbin, who is rather inclined to stoutness, was the last to come puffing up the stairs to the deck below the bridge. The serpent rose three times and then disappeared.

"It was a horrid sight," said the seventh mate. "The blooming thing 'e 'ad 'a head like a cat and the way 'e wiggled 'is tail was something wonderful. The hold man—meaning the skipper—'e was that took with the beast that 'e got the chief officer to make a sketch of it. The Captain, says he: 'Wot's 'e a looking at?' And the purser, he ups and says 'e recognizes the cat head, and then they wanted to throw 'im off the bridge."

It was at this point that the assistant to the fourth assistant engineer broke in to describe the creature's head, and this led to an argument which was only stopped by the boat's whistle. Most of the men agreed that it looked like a cat and had a rather neat fringe of whiskers under its chin.

"Did it talk?" the seventh mate was asked.

"Sure," he replied. "As it bobbed under the water it let off a long-drawn meow. What you might call a regular sea mew."

The sea serpent was sighted too far from this port to make it possible that the monster was disgusted at the backward summer season at nearby resorts and was seeking pastures new on the other side of the water.

The following is the opening paragraph of a report written by the third assistant carpenter to the Queenstown Literary and Debating League:

"While off the Irish coast we witnessed the rare sight of a curious and strangely formed monster of the deep disporting in the sea. It was shaped like a huge snake and had a head like one of the species fells domestica. The undulating folds of its body glistened in the morning sun and the water about it reflected its color of bright green and gold. It had creme de menthe whiskers about two feet long, which gracefully trailed astern."

The report continues to give details. It was only shown on condition that the writer's name should be kept a secret.

The Campana sent a wireless ashore, telling of the monster and warning vessels to look out for it. In some way this message got twisted and marine circles received the following report:

"SS. Sea Serpent, Captain Green, New York, for —, reported by SS. Campana off the Irish coast bound in."

Cures that last are cures that tell. Sciatic Rheumatism Cured.

To thoroughly know the virtues of a medicine you must investigate the cures and see if they prove permanent. Doan's Kidney Pills stand the test, and plenty of proof exists right here in Sedalia. People who testified years ago to relief from backache, kidney and urinary disorders, now declare that relief was permanent and the cure perfect. How can any Sedalia sufferer longer doubt the evidence?

William Ricks, of 603 West Fifth street, Sedalia, Mo., says: "I have already vouched for the merits of Doan's Kidney Pills in a statement made in 1901, when I first procured them at the Bard Drug Co. My experience warrants me in still recommending them. My son has also used them with benefit and has recommended them to his acquaintances."

For sale by all dealers. Price, 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

One of the Important Duties of Physicians and the Well-Informed of the World is to learn as to the relative standing and reliability of the leading manufacturers of medicinal agents, as the most eminent physicians are the most careful as to the uniform quality and perfect purity of remedies prescribed by them, and it is well known to physicians and the Well-Informed generally that the California Fig Syrup Co., by reason of its correct methods and perfect equipment and the ethical character of its product has attained to the high standing in scientific and commercial circles which is accorded to successful and reliable houses only, and, therefore, that the name of the Company has become a guarantee of the excellence of its remedy.

TRUTH AND QUALITY

appeal to the Well-Informed in every walk of life and are essential to permanent success and creditable standing, therefore we wish to call the attention of all who would enjoy good health, with its blessings, to the fact that it involves the question of right living with all the term implies. With proper knowledge of what is best each hour of recreation, of enjoyment, of contemplation and of effort may be made to contribute to that end and the use of medicines dispensed with generally to great advantage, but as in many instances a simple, wholesome remedy may be invaluable if taken at the proper time, the California Fig Syrup Co. feels that it is alike important to present truthfully the subject and to supply the one perfect laxative remedy which has won the approval of physicians and the world-wide acceptance of the Well-Informed because of the excellence of the combination, known to all, and the original method of manufacture, which is known to the California Fig Syrup Co. only.

This valuable remedy has been long and favorably known under the name of—Syrup of Figs—and has attained to world-wide acceptance as the most excellent of family laxatives, and as its pure laxative principles, obtained from Senna, are well known to physicians and the Well-Informed of the world to be the best of natural laxatives, we have adopted the more elaborate name of—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna—as more fully descriptive of the remedy, but doubtless it will always be called for by the shorter name of Syrup of Figs—and to get its beneficial effects always note, when purchasing, the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package, whether you simply call for—Syrup of Figs—or by the full name—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna—as—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna—is the one laxative remedy manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. and the same heretofore known by the name—Syrup of Figs—which has given satisfaction to millions. The genuine is for sale by all leading druggists throughout the United States in original packages of one size only, the regular price of which is fifty cents per bottle.

Every bottle is sold under the general guarantee of the Company, filed with the Secretary of Agriculture, at Washington, D. C., that the remedy is not adulterated or misbranded within the meaning of the Food and Drugs Act, June 30th, 1906.

MANY FAKE MYSTERIES

THE METHODS OF FAKERS AND SOME OF THE OTHER WONDER WORKERS.

IT IS EASY TO DECEIVE THE EYE

There is a Peculiar Fascination in Mystery to Every Son of Adam. There Being Not a Single Exception.

Phineas T. Barnum was a philosopher and student of nature as well as a showman, says the Pittsburg Times-Gazette. When he said that the American people loved to be humbugged, he was stating a truth based upon a well recognized foible of the race, American as well as universal. There is a peculiar fascination in mystery to every son of Adam. The thing that baffles us is the thing that most attracts us when put before us as a sort of challenge to our power of understanding. Subconsciously there is in every human mind a sense of some vast, outlying universe of power and of influence which, when our attention is invited, we eagerly long to penetrate. Psychologically this operation of the human mind may be traced to the religious instinct native to all of us. Most of us, I might say all of us, either positively or tentatively believe in the existence of the supernatural, that beyond the ken of human vision lies a great realm of silent and powerful forces that exert in a thousand ways potent influences upon all the details of human life, individually and collectively. This belief serves to mystify and awe, or else serves to arouse the most insistent curiosity. We are ready made for the hand of any person who will approach us or seem to approach us from that unseen realm bearing even in the slightest degree some secret of its power or some confirmation of its existence.

Upon this foundation is built the success of every faker and wonder-worker, from Houdini to Houdini, and from Kate King to Anna Eva Fay. As a means of amusement the conjurer's trick has come down to us from hoary antiquity. In every age there has always been the covert or open attempt to assume supernatural power for the trickster. With our advancing civilization and intelligence the effort is given less and less respect, but there are still great numbers of people who, because they can not in a moment or in an evening's entertainment master the intricacies of a system that has taken the performer years of study to evolve, immediately jump to the conclusion that the mystery is due to some collusion with supernatural forces. There have been innumerable exposures of the magic tricks of the conjurer. Sometimes, as in Heller's case, by a voluntary giving up of the secrets, and in other cases by forced or purchased revelations, as in the case recently in New York, where Miss Fay's secrets were given away by a dishonest assistant. The harmlessness of this means of public entertainment is undisputed, except in cases where the tricks are used to delude and distress innocent persons.

Reference was made above to Heller, who with his sister (?) became famous half a century ago for some remarkable "second sight" magic, similar in many respects to the work of the woman who is this week amazing people by her tricks at a local theater. If you are inclined to grow excited over these tricks or to imagine that this woman, or any other living person has the power to discover hidden things by means of a supernatural agency it will be something of a jolt to read the bare facts. You think some things you see are absolutely impossible to ordinary human skill. They are. Those people have extraordinary skill and have spent years in working out their several "systems."

The "systems" are different and yet they are all based upon human ingenuity and perseverance. I am not going to attempt to guess Miss Fay's system. When we consider the large number of assistants employed and the possibilities of telephonic aids, the possibilities become immense. I have before me a volume of Hellerism, which will prove an interesting side light on the subject, and will perhaps enable us to get some of the fog out of our eyes as to the things that baffle us so in the present faking, that may be generally regarded as of similar kind. In Heller's book we have an interesting chapter on "mental" or secret telegraphy, with illustrations and diagrams. Here we find the woman who answers all the remarkable questions, and blindfold describes minutely the things that her assistant touches, seated on a small four-legged cushioned stool. There is nothing around about the stool and the stage is bare, while the assistant is down in the audience taking articles and asking questions. The reverse picture shows the legs of the stool to contain telegraph wires connected with a battery and key manipulated by an assistant, who has a code so comprehensive that a tap of the key gives a "one," following which, in a process of memory culture, she can answer promptly 85 per cent of all the questions asked. A trick called the "Egyptian Cryptic" is based on so-called second sight. It is the mysterious writing trick, in which a card marked by one of the audience is put in a box and another card on which is written a short sentence is burned in sight of the audience. The box is locked and held by the woman, while the manipulator causes the ashes to pass into the box and has the woman to read what was written on the card that was originally put into it, and seemingly locked. In the first place, the box has a peculiar spring in one of the hinges which no ordinary examination would disclose, and for the rest a trap in the stage under the dress of the woman and an assistant who aids in the manipulation of the cards and box complete the chain of mysteries. No description here, nor can any written description, give an idea of the manner of doing these things. The people who do the tricks are far more dextrous with their hands than you are with your eyes.

One of the most interesting things in connection with the Heller book is the publication of a series of charts, showing the memory cues, for Heller and his sister did their mystifying second sight tricks through a tedious and laboriously acquired memory process. Blindfolded on the stage Miss Heller could describe objects held in the palm of the hand at any distant point in the audience. The cues and sub-cues given by the man in the audience who was supposed to be merely inducing the audience to select some article, display a marvelous demand upon the memory. "Be quick," "Well," "Go on," "See," "Here," "What," "Hog," etc., were all used as cues, along with other words as sub-cues, and yet the speaker only seemed to be using natural expressions that had no bearing on the case at all. This column will not permit an extended comment, but it is safe to assume that "Hellerism," in its essential features is the basis for the remarkable secrets that are just now puzzling, and in some instances frightening, the people of Pittsburg who like to be humbugged.

PROPER WAY TO WASH CHINA.

Delicate Material Should Have the Most Careful Handling.

The proper way to wash delicate china is to have two bowls, one with warm, soapy water, the other filled with cold water to rinse them in.

Take the cups and saucers one by one and wash them in the warm, soapy water, rinse well in the cold water, then let them drain on a board or tray.

Dry the china with a soft linen glass cloth to give it a good polish. For cups, saucers, and dainty plates washing soda is rarely needed in the water, and if there should be much grit in the pattern of the china it should never be used, as soda has a most injurious effect on gilt, causing it to rub off altogether.

Supposing the cups are stained by cold tea or coffee being left in them, after pouring it away rub the inside of the cup with a little salt, and when washed afterward the stain will disappear.

There ought to be a china cupboard in every house in which to keep the china and glass.

It should be fitted with shelves, and there should also be small hooks placed along the edge of each shelf on which to hang cups and cream pitchers.

HINTS FOR THE HOME.

Little Things It Will Be Well to Bear in Mind.

To perfume underlinen put a lump oforris root into the boiler on washing days. The clothes will be deliciously fragrant even after ironing.

To clean a copper kettle, cut a lemon in half, dip it in salt, and rub the kettle with it. The kettle should afterward be carefully rinsed in cold water, and given a final polish with a clean, soft cloth.

If chiffon ties and veils are merely tossed and crushed without being soiled, they can be made fresh if laid under a damp cloth and an iron applied.

If dirty, they may often be washed, but this process must be carried out speedily with a warm, soapy lather. Squeeze dry, but do not wring.

Squeeze and swish through the water, but do not rub.

Gently press and shake in place. If starch is required, gum water and rice water are the only reliable stiffeners. One is made by adding a few drops of gum to warm water, the other by straining the water off boiled rice.

A prompt, pleasant, good remedy for coughs and colds, is Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup. It is especially recommended for babies and children, but good for every member of the family. It contains no opiates and does not constipate. Contains honey and tar and tastes nearly as good as maple syrup. Children like it. Sold by Arlington pharmacy.

End of Pullman as a Feudal City.

George M. Pullman's dream of a model city has at last vanished in thin air. His vision of a Utopia for laboring men is shattered. It is a thing of the past. It was the supreme court of Illinois that punctured the bubble, and the town of Pullman, famous the world over as an ideal manufacturing town, takes its place along with the numerous other suburbs of Chicago, and its Utopian existence comes to an end. To be sure, the red brick city remains, with its 12,000 inhabitants, but the great Pullman company does not own it from center to circumference, as it once did. One by one the tenants are buying the cottages and dwellings in the town, and it will not be long before the 2,000 houses will be sold.

Some Hood Puns.

The punning preeminence of Hood was appreciated in high quarters. In Chatsworth's splendid libraries, on the dummy backs which veil the imitation doors, one may see specimens of Hood's little jokes. Here are a few—Beveridge on the Beer Act; Wren's Voyage to the Canaries; Minto's Coins; Horn Took on Catching Cows; Macadam's Rhodes; Bramah's Rape of the Lock; Inigo Jones on Secret Entrances; Esterhazy on Spring Fogs; Dyspepsia and Heartburn, by the Bishop of Sodor; Skye, by McClood; Dibdin's Cream of Tar. Such pleasantries seem just a trifle odd when you remember the priceless volumes on the Chatsworth shelves.—London Chronicle.

The Great Heron Must Go.

The great heron is not the only one of that family to subsist on a fish diet, but out of over a dozen species it is the largest and most gluttonous of its kind, and without a single redeeming quality, except, perhaps, the laughable and grotesque manner it swallows a fish. Louis Read, the artist-sportsman, suggests in Recreation that steps should be taken by followers of Isaac Walton to see that the law-makers of our various states should pass laws that will give the needed protection from these destroyers of our game fish.

Advice.

Henry Clews gives this advice to boys: "Avoid the man who habitually drinks alone." It is good advice, and would be still better if the last word were omitted.—Kansas City Journal.

THE CITY FATHERS MET

NUMBER OF ORDINANCES WERE PASSED AT LAST NIGHT'S MEETING.

WILL HAVE SEVERAL NEW SEWERS

No Bids Received for the Paving of West Third Street—Fire Escapes for All Three-Story Buildings.

At the adjourned session of the city council last night the following ordinances were passed:

For sidewalks on the north side of East Tenth street; for creating a part of sewer district No. 30 and district No. 30 A; for sidewalks on the north side of Main street, between Grand and Prospect avenue; for sidewalks on both sides of Second street, between Quincy and Park avenues; for creating sub-sewer districts A, B and C in district No. 22, three distinct ordinances for creating a sub-sewer district in the three sub-sewers of sewer district No. 22; providing for the uniformity of curb lines after a former ordinance covering the same had been repealed.

On motion of Mr. Winner, the ordinance providing for a park board of three members was laid on the table.

Action was deferred on the ordinance providing for a sub-sewer in district No. 30 A.

Mr. Crawford's motion to allow $150 for establishing a sewer in sub-district C of district No. 22 was carried.

Clerk Baker reported no bids had been received for paving Third street, from Osage to Park avenue. The reason was attributed to Engineer C. H. Zoll's estimate being too low—$1.20 per square yard. His request to change his bid was referred to Attorney McGruder.

J. C. Parmelee's offer of donating certain land to the city so as to make a shorter and more direct route to the cemetery, was referred to the proper committee.

The matter of placing fire escapes on buildings of more than two stories was brought up, and Clerk Baker was given orders to notify all owners of three-story buildings that unless they comply with the ordinance within thirty days prosecutions will follow.
